Pow! Cutie's back. Japanese-American artists Noriko Shinohara and Ushio Shinohara, the subjects of the 2013 documentary "Cutie and the Boxer," return to Deborah Colton Gallery with their latest works. Now in his late 80s, Ushio still paints with boxing gloves but also is exhibiting colorful sculptures in his show, "Maltese Falcon." Noriko's companion show, part of her long-running autobiographical series, is "Cutie's Love Letter from Malta."
